

Nutrient management

Land use

Edge-of-field practices

Multi-objective

Iowa Nutrient Research Center

INRC Seminar Spring 2020: Water Research Past, Present & Future

3:10-4:00 p.m., 1306 Elings Hall

January 22 - Looking in the Rearview Mirror: Some Thoughts on the Future of Nutrient Management in Iowa

Pete Nowak, Professor, Nelson Institute for Environmental Studies, University of Wisconsin

February 26 - History of Water Quality Research with the National Laboratory for Agriculture and the Environment

Dan Jaynes, Soil scientist, USDA Agricultural Research Service, recently retired

March 25 - History of Buffer Research at Iowa State University

Tom Isenhardt, Professor, Natural Resource Ecology and Management Department, Iowa State University

April 22 - Lessons from the Chesapeake to the Mississippi

Jason Hubbard, Director of Institute of Water Security and Science, West Virginia University

May 20 (3:10-5:00 p.m.) - Field Tour of Wetlands near Ames

William Crumpton, University Professor, Ecology, Evolution & Organismal Biology Department, Iowa State University

(Transportation provided - please RSVP to malcolmr@iastate.edu)

This seminar series is sponsored by the Iowa Nutrient Research Center at Iowa State University. Sessions are free and open to the public. They can be accessed live at <https://iastate.zoom.us/j/453515790> and will be recorded and posted on the INRC website, at www.cals.iastate.edu/inrc/ with the permission of presenters. For questions, contact INRC Program Coordinator Malcolm Robertson, at malcolmr@iastate.edu.

Elings Hall, 605 Bissell Road, Ames, is located on the west side of campus. Off-campus attendees are encouraged to park in the Memorial Union ramp, due to limited public parking near Elings Hall.

IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY
College of Agriculture and Life Sciences